Dear Mr. Newman:

The total amount of Cents you retained is $1496.40, bills $3.25 or a grand total of $1502.65. The cost of the goods you retained is $400.25; figuring the cost of the bills at say, 50¢, makes a grand total of $400.75.

I will take in their place goods according to the enclosed list at a selling price of $1502.75, cost of $398.35, which gives you a little the best of the deal and is as close as it was possible to figure it. In fact, it was some job!

Dear Mr. Newman:

I herewith enclose complete list of the coins exchanged against another from our joint account of the Green Collection.

After eliminating the 1863 centime Cent from your lot and finding two errors in costs, actual cost of the 1863 Cent being $3.00 instead of $4.00 and of the other 1863 being $3.50 instead of $4.50, the transaction shows a balance still due you on a basis of $16.15 list price, $4.00 cost. In other words, you are entitled to make of that amount. Most of this difference comes from the 1863 Cent and the two cost errors.

Very truly yours,

B. G. Johnson

Dear Mr. Newman:

Herewith itemized list of goods taken balancing goods taken by you. I am adding credit of $25.00 due me on the change you made. Could not balance the thing exactly but one side is a bit over and one side a bit less - so the approximate balance is correct.
